Expect the best emergency heart care at PBMC

Coronary heart disease is the single leading cause of death in America today, and this year an estimated 1.1 million Americans will experience a heart attack. If you or someone you love experiences symptoms of a heart attack, the PBMC Emergency Department staff is ready to offer you the highest quality care. ER doctors and cardiologists will assess the severity of your condition. If you are indeed having a heart attack, ER doctors and cardiologists will administer appropriate medications. These may include the life-saving thrombolytic drugs, the so-called "clot busters." If you require surgical intervention after your condition has been stabilized, you will be referred to a cardiac surgeon and transferred to a nearby coronary surgical facility.

PBMC Helps You Keep the Beat

PBMCC offers a state-of-the-art telemetry system that provides "anywhere; anytime" cardiac monitoring. With this system, all information produced by a patient's heart monitor, blood pressure, heart rate and rhythm, and oxygen content of the blood may be viewed by the doctor from his office or even his home computer screen as it is occurring, via a secure Internet connection. If the doctor detects an irregularity, he or she can quickly confer with the hospital staff, and, if it is determined that immediate action is needed, treatment can begin, saving precious minutes until the doctor gets to the hospital. Two of Peconic Bay Medical Center's cardiologists have earned the prestigious certification of Specialists in Clinical Hypertension, held by fewer than one percent of cardiologists in the country.
